

25X1C

Approved For Release 2000/08/28 : CIA-RDP78-04718A001600230005-6

Approved For Release 2000/08/28 : CIA-RDP78-04718A001600230005-6

25X1C 8. The incumbent provides economic intelligence support to the economic staff [REDACTED] These responsibilities include:

25X1C a. Participation in staff meetings [REDACTED]

25X1C b. Conducting current and general economic intelligence briefings [REDACTED]

25X1C c. Providing extensive support [REDACTED] in the field of economic defense.

25X1C 9. He is charged with the supervisory responsibility of the OIR team assigned to [REDACTED] This may include persons on temporary duty from headquarters, as well as the nine individuals assigned on a permanent basis.

II. Supervision Received:

25X1A Administrative supervision is received from the Senior Representative for CIA [REDACTED] Substantive supervision is received from the DD/I and/or the Assistant Director for Research and Reports. Extensive written instructions, procedures, regulations, and work precedence are not available and, in most cases, if necessary would be transmitted from headquarters, Washington, through established communication channels. Immediate supervision is generally not available or considered necessary for this level of operation. Review of completed work projects and the effectiveness of the incumbent in the performance of his assigned duties is performed at headquarters through the review of his written items transmitted to headquarters and through the reports of his effectiveness from other senior United States officers who may have knowledge of the individual's performance.

III. Minimum Qualification Requirements:

1. Knowledge:

The incumbent should have a broad knowledge of the scope of responsibility and the mission and functions of OIR and the entire IAC organization, particularly in the field of economic intelligence, analysis, and research.

2. Skills:

No special skills are required.

3. Abilities:

He should have management ability, as well as substantive ability in the fields of intelligence research analysis and reporting.

4. Work Experience and Education:

The incumbent should be a Senior Intelligence Officer with a minimum of two year's experience in ORR at the GS-14 level. He should hold a Bachelor's Degree from an accredited college with a major in one of the areas of responsibility related to the ORR intelligence research effort.

5. Personal Characteristics:

The incumbent should possess a non-assuming, yet pleasing, personality in order for him to exploit to the maximum his [redacted] responsibilities.

25X1C

6. Special Qualifications:

25X1C

Incumbent must be qualified for [redacted]

IX. Distinguishing Features:

The responsibilities of this position require a broad knowledge of the entire intelligence community and involve the supervision of a diversified responsibility covering virtually each major area of responsibility found within the present scope of the mission and functions of ORR, to include economic intelligence, geographic intelligence, economic defense intelligence, and [redacted]. This position should be comparable to at least the Chief of a large branch within one of the substantive intelligence-producing divisions of the Office of Research and Reports.

25X1B